The provisions of the Supplementary Recon struction Bill are not the kind of provisions the starving portion of the Southern States expected. There is quite a flutter among the ladies on account of a report that the State Constable intends to prevent the sale of hair oil, that article containing more or less alcohol.

A statue of HENRY CLAY will be inaugurated in the Court House at Louisville on the 12th of April, when an address will be delivered by the Hon. ROBERT C. WINTHEOP, of Massachusetts. Messrs. MILLARD FILLMORE and A. H. STEVENS are also expected to be present.

The people of Maine understand the proper way to keep infants out of places of amusement. A town in that State recently had a festival, and on its show bills the public were informed that the terms of admission were twenty-five cents; for children under fourteen years, fifteen cents; but under four years, one dollar.

Massachusetts does not recognize greenbacks or National corrency in the payment of interest on her public debt. She pays, and has all along paid specie on her State bonds. The consequence is her five per cents, are above par. There are some good fruits after all in the old Bay State, and we readily recognize and give her due credit for them.

The Helens Clarion says the planters on the uplands of Arkansas have made little or no preparation for seeding, in consequence of the continued rains, and the work of those on the river lowlands has been indefinitely suspended by the overflow. The flood had spated an inch or two, but the Mississippi was threatening still higher water.

The new dining-room of the Leek House, at San Francisco, is said to be the finest in the United States. There is said to be a hitch in the BEECHER novel in the Ledger. The novel halts—the gifted author finds it difficult work and delays handing in the manuscript. A friend lately asked why the delay. when Mr. BEECHER candidly told him that he thought "novel writing was not his forte," and added naively, giving his friend a poke in the ribs, "but if I fail, all they can say is, that BEECHER can't write a novel," and he laughed heartily at his

Princeton College has accepted the JEROME gift of five thousand dollars, and the interest will be expended annually in the purchase of prizes for gentlemanly conduct on the part of the students. The senior class and the literary societies will each farnish one candidate. The collegians will make the first choice, subject, however, to the final decision of the faculty. In a year or so, therefore we shall know whether it is as easy to raise gentlemen, as prize turnips. The Hartford (Conn.) Times says: The famous Gen. DISTRESS IN THE STATE. It is impossible to neglect or misinterpret

the evidence which reaches us from all portions of the State of the misery of our unfortunate people. The statements of nearly all the local newspapers are confirmed by the accounts of intelligent and public spirited men in the upper Districts especially. There is no doubt that to-day there are hundreds who have not daily bread, and thousands who cannot look forward for more than a few days to the certainty of needful food. The statement made by a respectable clergyman of the condition of things in the neighborhood of Sumter District, which he investigated carefully and conscientiously, is enough to startle every reflecting man. Three hundred and sixty persons, within an area of five miles, without food, and the majority of them living on husks, is fearful. And we are informed by some of the most trustworthy citizens of the State that in their Districts the great majority of the farmers have not provision for laborers or work animals which will last a month. That they are workis a registered colored voter in Washington. He ing in the hope of finding some means of credit as their work progresses, and that no where have the larger planters surplus supplies from which they can, as has been the custom, aid their poorer neighbors. We shrink from publishing the details which have been brought to our notice. Think of a case like this vouched for by the humane person who afforded the re-Wales' attack of rheumatism was the result of ex- lief-a woman, whose husband was killed before Petersburg, rising from her sick bed to bury one child, who literally had died of starvation, and dragging herself thirteen miles, though a stormy night, to beg for food enough to save the life of the child she had left. The causes of this terrible suffering are for the most part beyond our control, but there is one cause we can reach, and that is the excess of cotton culture over the provision crop. There has been a greedy thirst for the profits of cotton, which has induced too many people to neglect the food crop, and we do hope that it is not yet too late for the planting community of the State to realize not only that it is their interest, but their duty to plant largely of previsions. We know all the difficulty, we know that with high wages it is impossible to plant corn profitably, and that large planters mustto meet high wages, extortionate interest and the risk of uncertain labor-plant what will pay. But, short of the point at which it becomes > vision crop. Not only does this suffering destroy our people by actual physical misery, but it demoralises their characters. A constant struggle for life wears out hope; it makes men reckless, and endangers even more than political grievances the interests of society. It is useless to deny or attempt to conceal the fact hat large masses of our people are in a condition of feeling neither right nor safe. Beside the suffering from want, the returns to the Spring Courts, now in session, indicate a condition of indebtedness, with all its consequent embarrassment, from which no energy can extricate us. We believe that a remark, atributed to one of the most eminent lawyers of the State, is true of the whole State. "If," he said, "all the suits are pressed to settlement by execution, the sale of all the lands in the district at present prices, will not pay costs"-and they will be pressed to settlement. In the city, creditors are not disturbed by false rumors and unfounded alarms. The business men of a large community are always liberal; they understand that their interest is the interest of the community, and there is a certain average of profit and loss, which they know how to calculate and how to meet. It is not so in the country. There men's minds are thoroughly disturbed; their fears are excited; they know that a Convention is to be held during the year; they do not know what is to be its composition, nor what its policy, whether it will interfere or not with the question of debt, and they very naturally desire to secure the liens which they hold. Most of the agricultural debt too is secured by land. Negro property has been destruged, and when land is sold the debtor

We do not propose to sit in judgment upon the action of the Legislature. We comprehend the enormous difficulties with which the whole question is surrounded, and we respect the spirit of good faith and honor which inluced men as wise and humane as any other citizens of the State to hesitate in disturbing vested rights and tampering with the obligations of contracts. But the condition of things in the State is such that no man with good feeling, or good sense, can regard it otherwise than with distress and apprehension. The proceedings in York and Lancaster, and Newberry, are too significant to be disregarded. In Chester, the bar, through Mr. MELTON, the Solicitor of the Circuit, with admirable judgment, we think, moved the continuance of the whole docket, and it was granted. Compelled as we are, to go through the ordeal of a political agitation this summer, which is full of danger and difficulty, it is most desirable that our people should be held together, closely united "in the bond of peace" that beween them there should be no dissention and no ill feeling. Is there not in the State intelligence, hunanity, energy, public spirit enough to combine even our reduced means for common relief? can we not at least, endeavor to lighten each others woes? And if the ship in which we all sailed into an unknown sea, full of high hopes and glorious anticipations, has foundered, can we not share in patience the disaster of a common shipwreck and not fight over the of a common shipwreck and not fight over the stomach or impregnate the breath. No change of diet is necessary while using them, nor does their action in any manner interfere with business pursuits. Price $1

MR. BUCHANAN,-His Excellency, ex-United States President, JAMES BUCHANAN-irreverently styled by the iconoclasts of the North, the "old Pub. Funk"—has been invited, by a number of Pennsylvania Democrats, to a public dinner. He did not go to the dinner, but wrote letter instead. In this letter he gives advice. He says: "Adhere to the Constitution of your country. Never despair." Now, we have never been among those who either entertained or professed anything like hero-worship for the Sage of Wheatlands," but at the same time we can see nothing in the advice above quoted that should subject him either to the ridicule or obloquy, which is measured out to him with a liberal hand by the Radical press of the North. The New York Tribune, of the 29th ult., commenting upon this letter, says: "Considering that Mr. B. held that the Constitution justified

Secession, such an opinion as this is not likely to revolutionize our politics." This sentence must have been penned by a new hand, Surely our venerable friend, "H. G.," has not orgotten that the Tribune, in the winter of 1860-'61, repeatedly said in its editorials: 'Let the wayward sisters go." Where then is the great difference, on this cardinal point of the loyal creed, between Mr. B. and his critic, the Tribune?

who will avail themselves of its remedial power may be benefited.

It only requires a fair trial to confirm its invaluable agency in diffusing through each channel of the human organization a restored vitality. It invigorates and embues the Lungs with he althrid elasticity; restores warmth, which is their essential element; conses the singgish vessels into activity; heals the affected lobes; purifies and enriches the blood; regulates the circulation; induces free and easy respiration, and expels, through its administration, each and every concomitant disorder present in the malady recognized as Consumption, and Intherto deemed hopeless and incurable.

This compound is perfectly safe, possessing neither nerotic nor emetic properties, which unfortunately are always employed as essentials in every preparation for Cough or Lung affection—a mistake which too of en in its irritating and debilitating consequences, only conduces to much general derangement of the system, destroying appetite and creating an injurious nervous excitement, augmenting suffering with frequent fatal results.
